

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The present invention is directed a method of celebrating a person's life by attendees at a funeral after the person's death. The method comprises the steps of 5 causing the person, while alive, to create an audio/video presentation that would welcome the attendee to the person's funeral and include personal comments to the attendee in a generally uplifting sense about the occasion of the funeral. The method further comprises storing the audio/video with 10 instructions that the presentation be played at the person's funeral, and publicly playing the presentation at the person's funeral for the attendees at the funeral to see and hear.